CONSENT ORDER FOR A CIVIL MONEY PENALTY

The Comptroller of the Currency of the United States of America (“Comptroller”), through his national bank examiners and other staff of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (“OCC”), has conducted an examination of RBS Citizens, National Association, now known as Citizens Bank, National Association, Providence, Rhode Island (“Bank”). The OCC has identified deficiencies in the Bank’s practices that resulted in violations of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act (“FTC Act”), 15 U.S.C. § 45(a)(1), related to deposit reconciliation practices, and has informed the Bank of the findings resulting from the examination.

The Bank, by and through its duly elected and acting Board of Directors (“Board”), has executed a Stipulation and Consent to the Issuance of an Order for a Civil Money Penalty, dated August 10, 2015, that is accepted by the Comptroller (“Stipulation”). By this Stipulation, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Bank has consented to the issuance of this Consent Order for a Civil Money Penalty (“Order”) by the Comptroller.

ARTICLE I

COMPTROLLER'S FINDINGS

The Comptroller finds, and the Bank neither admits nor denies, the following:

(1) Between January 2008 and November 2013, the Bank identified discrepancies between the amount of funds deposited by Bank customers and the amount of funds encoded from customers' accompanying deposit slips in connection with non-cash transactions.

(2) For discrepancies that were within a specified dollar range, Bank policy required its employees to follow review procedures in order to reconcile and correct the discrepancy. Bank employees failed to follow the review procedures consistently. Instead of reconciling and correcting these discrepancies between the amount of funds presented for deposit and the amount stated on the deposit slips, Bank employees determined that the amount encoded from deposit slips was controlling, regardless of the amount of funds actually deposited, and credited the customers with the amounts encoded. To the extent the amounts encoded from these deposit slips differed from the amounts actually deposited, customers received the deposit slip amount, which may have been more or less. The Bank did not notify the affected customers.

(3) For discrepancies under that specified dollar range, the Bank automatically accepted as correct the amount encoded from customers' deposit slips. To the extent the amounts encoded from these deposit slips differed from the amounts actually deposited, customers received the deposit slip amount, which may have been more or less. The Bank did not notify the affected customers.

(4) The Bank's deposit account agreements failed to describe accurately the Bank's processes for resolving these discrepancies and how resulting adjustments to depositors' accounts were made.

(5) By reason of the foregoing deposit reconciliation practices as described in Paragraphs (1) to (4) of this Article, the Bank engaged in unfair and deceptive practices in violation of Section 5 of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. § 45(a)(1).

(6) The Bank's violations of Section 5 of the FTC Act caused substantial consumer injury or were likely to cause substantial consumer injury.

(7) The Bank's violations of Section 5 of the FTC Act involved material representations that were likely to mislead reasonable consumers.

(8) The Bank's violations of law are part of a pattern of misconduct that resulted in financial gain to the Bank.

(9) The Bank's failure to perform appropriate risk assessments and implement appropriate internal controls and staffing for the deposit reconciliation practices described in this Article constituted unsafe and unsound practices.

(10) Pursuant to the authority vested in him by the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, as amended, 12 U.S.C. § 1818, the Comptroller hereby ORDERS that:

(3) The terms of this Order, including this paragraph, are not subject to amendment or modification by any extraneous expression, prior agreements, or prior arrangements between the parties, whether oral or written.
