

ARTICLE I

COMPTROLLER'S FINDINGS

The Comptroller finds, and the Bank neither admits nor denies, the following:

(1) The foreign exchange ("FX") market is one of the largest and most liquid markets in the world. The FX market enables participants to buy, sell, exchange, hedge and speculate on currencies. The spot FX market is decentralized and lacks a comprehensive set of rules and regulations governing market activities and conduct. The Bank for International Settlements estimates that the daily average volume turnover of the global FX market was over five trillion dollars in April 2013 with spot transactions making up over two trillion in turnover every day.

(2) The G10 spot FX market includes transactions between two parties to exchange currencies with settlement on a spot date (generally within two business days). G10 currencies include the U.S. dollar, euro, British pound, Japanese yen, Swedish krona, Norwegian krone, Australian dollar, New Zealand dollar, Swiss franc, and the Canadian dollar. The Bank for International Settlements estimates that daily average turnover in G10 currency pairs accounts for approximately seventy five percent (75%) of total FX turnover.

(3) WM/Reuters ("WM/R") publishes a series of hourly intraday spot rates ("benchmarks" or "fixes") for certain currency pairs, including a "closing" rate at end of the trading day in London at 4:00 p.m. London Time. For certain currency pairs, WM/R calculates the published rate using the trading activity on a particular electronic trading platform during a one minute window ("fixing window") thirty seconds before and thirty seconds after the end of each hour.

(4) The European Central Bank ("ECB") also establishes reference rates for various currency pairs generally at 2:15 p.m. Central European Time.

(5) Rates established at these fixes are used by global financial market participants to execute trades and by others such as corporations, asset managers, and pension funds to value their portfolios and transact at a published benchmark rate.

(6) The Bank was an active dealer in the G10 spot foreign exchange market during the period from 2008 through 2013 (“Relevant Period”).

(7) As a dealer in the spot FX market, the Bank provides liquidity in G10 currencies by acting as a principal market maker, trading with other dealers and customers on behalf of the Bank, and to seek to earn a profit on the bid-ask spread.

(8) While much of spot FX is transacted on electronic trading platforms, the Bank has “voice” traders who interact with the Bank’s FX sales personnel, or in some cases, the customer directly, to execute the customer’s order as a principal by transacting in the market or dealing from the Bank’s inventory.

(9) The Bank agrees to transact with customers through various types of orders, including in relevant part:

- (a) Market orders, to buy or sell at the best available market price;
- (b) Limit orders, including stop loss orders and take profit orders, in which the Bank agrees to buy or sell to the customer upon the currency pair reaching a specified rate; and
- (c) Fix orders, in which the Bank agrees that it will buy or sell to the customer at a specified forthcoming fix rate. The Bank may seek to manage risk associated with forthcoming fix orders by transacting prior to the fixing window in an amount sufficient to cover the Bank’s net fix orders.

(10) The Bank's FX traders encountered potential conflicts of interest between trading to maximize the Bank's profit or the trader's profit, or both, and providing fair execution to the Bank's customers.

(11) Use of electronic messaging platforms was common among traders throughout the industry. During the Relevant Period, the Bank's FX spot traders participated in multibank chatrooms on instant messaging platforms, until it prohibited such communications in December 2013.

(12) While participating in multibank chatrooms, some of the Bank's G10 spot FX traders discussed engaging in potential misconduct with traders from other banks or market participants, including:

- (a) Discussions of coordinating trading strategies among the Bank's traders and traders at other banks to attempt to manipulate the WM/R spot FX benchmark rates or ECB spot FX reference rates to the benefit of the trader or the bank or both and to the potential detriment to some of the Bank's customers;
- (b) Discussions of trading, either alone or collusively, to trigger customers' limit orders, such as stop loss or take profit orders, or customers' barrier options for the trader or Bank's benefit and to the potential detriment of such customers;
- (c) Discussions of trading in advance of pending customers' orders for the trader or Bank's benefit and to the potential detriment of such customers;
- (d) Discussions about agreements not to trade in a particular currency pair while other traders were doing so; and

- (e) Disclosure of confidential Bank information, including the disclosure of information regarding customer order flows and proprietary Bank information, such as FX rate spreads.

(13) These communications occurred during the Relevant Period and went undetected by the Bank for several years.

(14) The OCC engaged in a joint, targeted examination of the Bank and its foreign exchange business with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The OCC's examination findings established that the Bank had deficiencies in its internal controls and had engaged in unsafe or unsound banking practices with respect to the oversight and governance of the Bank's FX trading business such that the Bank failed to detect and prevent the conduct set forth in paragraph twelve (12). The deficiencies and unsafe or unsound practices include the following:

- (a) The Bank's oversight and governance of its FX trading business were weak and lacked adequate formal guidance to mitigate and manage risks related to market conduct in FX Trading with respect to sales, trading and supervisory employees in that business ("Employee");
- (b) The Bank's compliance risk assessment lacked sufficient granularity and failed to identify the risks related to Employee market conduct in FX Trading;
- (c) The Bank's transaction monitoring and communications surveillance were inadequate to detect potential Employee market misconduct in FX Trading;

- (d) The Bank's compliance testing procedures were inadequate to measure adherence to the Bank's standards of Employee conduct and firm policies applicable to Employee market conduct in FX Trading; and
- (e) Internal audit's risk assessment and coverage of the FX trading business needed improvement to assess whether the Bank's control framework was effective in identifying and mitigating compliance risks related to Employee market conduct.

(15) The OCC previously criticized the Bank's documentation and recordkeeping support, management review, post-submission monitoring, communications monitoring and audit coverage, and requested the Bank to perform a gap analysis of the Bank's submissions in the LIBOR (London interbank offered rate) benchmark rate setting process.

(16) The Bank has committed to, and has already begun, taking necessary and appropriate steps to remedy the deficiencies and unsafe or unsound practices identified by the OCC.

OTHER PROVISIONS

(1) Although this Order requires the Bank to submit certain plans for the review or prior written determination of no supervisory objection by the Deputy Comptroller or the Examiner-in-Charge, the Board has the ultimate responsibility for proper and sound management of the Bank.

(2) If, at any time, the Comptroller deems it appropriate in fulfilling the responsibilities placed upon him by the several laws of the United States to undertake any action affecting the Bank, nothing in this Order shall in any way inhibit, estop, bar or otherwise prevent the Comptroller from so doing.

(3) This Order constitutes a settlement of the cease and desist proceeding against the Bank contemplated by the Comptroller, based on the unsafe or unsound practices described in the Comptroller's Findings set forth in Article I of this Order related to FX Trading. The OCC releases and discharges the Bank and its subsidiaries from all potential liability for a cease and desist order that has been or might have been asserted by the OCC based on the practices described in the Comptroller's Findings related to FX Trading set forth in Article I of this Order, to the extent known to the Comptroller as of the effective date of the Order. The Deputy Comptroller's decision regarding the request is final and not subject to further review.

(6) The terms and provisions of this Order apply to the Bank and its subsidiaries, even though those subsidiaries are not named as parties to this Order. The Bank shall integrate any activities done by a subsidiary into its plans, policies, programs and processes required by this Order. The Bank shall ensure that its subsidiaries comply with all terms and provisions of this Order.

(7) This Order is intended to be, and shall be construed to be, a final order issued pursuant to 12 U.S.C. § 1818(b), and expressly does not form, and may not be construed to form, a contract binding the Comptroller or the United States. Without limiting the foregoing, nothing in this Order shall prevent any action against the Bank or its institution-affiliated parties by a bank regulatory agency, the United States Department of Justice, or any other law enforcement agency.

(8) The terms of this Order, including this paragraph, are not subject to amendment or modification by any extraneous expression, prior agreements, or prior arrangements between the parties, whether oral or written.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the above premises, it is stipulated by the Bank that:

determine and ensure compliance with the terms and provisions of this Stipulation or the Consent Order.
