Thrift Bulletin

TB 79

Handbooks: Thrift Activities
Subject: Loan Portfolio Diversification

Section: 211

RESCINDED

Summary: The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) published a final rule amending part 32, the regulation governing the percentage of capital and surplus that a national bank may loan to any one borrower. The rule, effective on September 10, 2001, establishes a three-year pilot program that creates new special lending limits for two categories of loans, 1-4 family residential real estate loans and small businesses loans. Under section 5(u) of the Home Owners' Loan Act (HOLA), the rule will apply to savings associations in the same manner and to the same extent as it applies to national banks. Eligible savings associations with home offices located in states that have relevant lending limits higher than the current Federal limit may apply to take part in the pilot program.

Thrift Bulletin 79

Background

The Financial Institutions Reform Recovery and Enforcement Act revised the lending limits to one borrower for savings associations to parallel those applicable to national banks. Savings associations are now generally allowed to lend no more than 15 percent of their unimpaired capital and surplus to one borrower. The OCC, recognizing that many states have higher limits for the banks they charter, has implemented a three-year pilot program for 1-4 family residential real estate and small business loans, to allow approved national banks to compete more effectively with state-chartered banks. OTS believes that this expanded authority is in the best interest of the thrift industry and is implementing the pilot program simultaneously with the OCC.

The Rule

The OCC's lending limits pilot program regulations are attached¹. Please read them carefully. This bulletin only clarifies some implementation issues for savings associations.

The pilot program covers only perfected first lien 1-4 family residential (either owner-occupied or not) real estate mortgages in the amounts that do not exceed 80 percent of the appraised values of the collateral at the time the loans are made and small business loans. For 1-4 family residential mortgages, the lending limit under the pilot program for approved OTS institutions is based on the state's lending limit for state-chartered banks for residential real estate loans or unsecured loans. For small business loans, the lending limit is based on the state's lending limit for state-chartered banks for small business loans or unsecured loans. The limits may vary by different for residential real estate mortgages and small business loans. Because of the separate percentage dollar limits established under the pilot program, the OCC waived the $1 million safe harbor designation for small business loans. The expanded limits are available for business loans, specifically, loans secured by "nonfarm, nonresidential property" and "commercial and industrial loans" as these terms are defined in the Call Report, Schedule RC-C, Part 1, 1e and 4 (rev. 3-01). Note that the pilot program deliberately excludes agricultural and farm loans. This exclusion also holds for approved OTS-regulated institutions. In general, the expanded limits are available for commercial loans, with the exception of farm loans, as described in the instructions for the Thrift Financial Report.

The lending limits pilot program does not expand an association's asset investment authority. State-chartered associations should comply with applicable state law. Federal associations must comply with the investment limitations set forth in Section 5(c)(2)(A) of HOLA, which allows thrifts to make commercial loans up to 20 percent of their total assets, provided that the amount in excess of 10 percent of assets is used solely for small business loans.

For HOLA investment limit purposes, business loans larger than $1 million made under this pilot program would require the same documentation as that currently required for a business loan larger than $1 million to be characterized as a loan to a small business.

The lending limits of the state where the approved savings association's home office is located establish the limits for the institution, regardless of the state in which the borrower or branch is located.

Consequently, an approved savings association may make qualifying residential and small business loans to a single borrower, in addition to amounts that it can already loan, that are the lesser of:

- 10 percent of its unimpaired capital and surplus,
- $10 million, or
- The percentage of its capital and surplus, in excess of 15 percent, that a state bank is permitted to lend.

Additionally,

- The total outstanding amount of all loans and extensions of credit to any one borrower cannot exceed 25 percent of the savings association's unimpaired capital and surplus, and
- The additional outstanding amount of loans and extensions of credit to all borrowers made under this pilot program cannot exceed 100 percent of the savings association's unimpaired capital and surplus.

Applications will not be accepted after June 11, 2004, but saving associations that have been approved may continue to use the special exception until September 10, 2004.

Eligibility

An eligible savings association is “well capitalized”, has a composite rating of 1 or 2 in connection with its most recent examination or subsequent review, and has a rating of at least 2 for both asset quality and for management, and typically will have experience and expertise in making loans of the types for which it is applying for the additional lending authority.

Application Process

The pilot program is intended for well-capitalized savings associations who compete with state chartered institutions that have higher single-borrower limits. An eligible institution must submit an application to its regional office and receive approval before using the pilot program’s special lending limits. The regional office may approve a completed application if it finds that approval is consistent with safety and soundness.

The pilot program is directed toward savings associations with a proven management team and board of directors, stable operations, and a demonstrated history of prudent lending over an extended period of time. Regional offices have the discretion to deny an application from a savings association whose past performance or current credit culture raise questions or concerns regarding its ability to operate in a safe and sound manner with the enhanced lending limit authority, even if the savings association meets the eligibility requirements detailed above.

In general, the application must include a certification that the institution is eligible, a citation to the relevant state law or regulation, a copy of the written resolution by the majority of the board of directors approving of the use of the pilot program’s special lending limits, and a description of how the board will oversee the use of the special lending limits. Specific guidance on the details of the application procedures and the approval process is located in Section 850 of the Applications Processing Handbook and will be available on the internet at www.ots.treas.gov on the “Applications” page.

A savings association that has received OTS approval may make loans and extensions of credit under the special lending limits until September 10, 2004. An approved institution must cease making new loans or extensions of credit in reliance on the special limits if it becomes ineligible, OTS rescinds its authority, or OTS terminates the pilot program.

Any loans made by the savings association to a borrower in compliance with the requirements of the pilot program will not be deemed a lending limit violation and will not be treated as nonconforming if the savings association becomes ineligible, its authority to participate in the pilot program is rescinded, or the pilot program is terminated or discontinued. However, no additional funds could be advanced to the borrower as long as the outstanding amount of the bank’s loans and extensions of credit to the borrower exceeded the regular lending limit.

Ongoing Monitoring

OTS expects to use the results of the pilot program to evaluate the additional lending authority. Approved institutions should maintain current data on the number and amount of small business and 1-4 family residential loans made under the pilot program and the percentage of the institution’s capital and surplus that the additional lending represents. The regional offices will contact approved institutions for these data about thirty days after the end of each quarter.

Thrift Bulletin 79

During the pilot program, approved institutions that extend credit or make loans under the additional lending authority should also monitor such activities to ensure that they are conducted in a safe and sound manner, that there is no adverse effect on the savings association's operations or capital, and that the loans and extensions of credit comply with all other relevant laws, regulations, and policies.

Any such loan or extension of credit must be secured by a perfected first-lien security interest in 1-4 family real estate in an amount that does not exceed 80 percent of the appraised value of the collateral at the time the loan or extension of credit is made. In no event may a bank lend more than $10 million to one borrower under this authority.
