This bulletin briefly summarizes a final rule concerning the risk-based capital treatment for certain asset-backed commercial paper (ABCP) purchased by national banks pursuant to a special lending facility established by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (Federal Reserve). The final rule was published on March 27, 2009, in the Federal Register by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC).

Summary

The final rule extends the risk-based capital treatment of a previously issued interim final rule for ABCP purchased by national banks pursuant to the Asset-Backed Commercial Paper Money Market Mutual Fund Liquidity Facility (ABCP Lending Facility) established by the Federal Reserve. The ABCP Lending Facility enables depository institutions to borrow on a nonrecourse basis from the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston if the depository institution uses the loan proceeds to purchase high-quality ABCP from money market mutual funds. The Federal Reserve established the ABCP Lending Facility on September 19, 2008, and extended it to October 30, 2009. The final rule, which applies to ABCP purchased pursuant to the ABCP Lending Facility, recognizes that the nonrecourse basis of the loan protects the bank from the credit and market risks of the purchased ABCP. Under the final rule, a national bank may assign a zero percent risk weight to the ABCP purchased by the bank.

- Interim Final Rule 74 FR 13336
Introduction

In light of the ongoing dislocations in the financial markets, and their impact on the functioning of the ABCP markets and the operations of money market mutual funds, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (FRB) adopted the AMLF on September 19, 2008. Under the AMLF, depository institutions and bank holding companies (banking organizations) are able to borrow from the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston on a nonrecourse basis on condition that the banking organizations use the proceeds of the Federal Reserve credit to purchase, at amortized cost, certain highly rated U.S. dollar-denominated ABCP from money market mutual funds. The ABCP purchased must be used to secure the borrowing from the Reserve Bank. The purpose of the AMLF is to enable money market mutual funds to increase their liquidity by enabling them to sell some of their high-credit-quality secured assets at amortized cost. The AMLF was set to expire on January 30, 2009. However, to promote continued stability in the money market mutual funds, the FRB extended the program until October 30, 2009.

Description of Interim Final Rule

National banks that participate in the AMLF must acquire and hold ABCP on their balance sheet. These ABCP holdings are subject to regulatory capital requirements under the OCC’s regulatory capital guidelines and rules. To facilitate national bank participation in the AMLF, the OCC adopted, on an interim final basis, an exemption from its risk-based capital guidelines for ABCP purchased by a national bank as a result of its participation in this program. The AMLF was set to expire on January 30, 2009. However, to encourage the stability of money market mutual funds, the program has been extended to October 30, 2009. This rule finalizes the risk-based capital exemption and extends the risk-based capital exemption to ABCP purchased beyond the original January 30, 2009, date. This final rule applies the risk-based capital exemption to any ABCP purchased as a result of a national bank’s participation in the facility. The risk-based capital exemption will continue to apply if the AMLF is extended beyond October 30, 2009.

and inconsistent with the public interest since it may result in undue constraint on national banks' ability to perform critical lending and financial intermediary roles, which are necessary for the orderly functioning and liquidity of financial markets. Issuance of this final rule furthers the public interest because it will reduce liquidity and other strains being experienced by money market mutual funds.

Regulatory Analysis

Executive Order 12866

The OCC has determined that this final rule is not a significant regulatory action under Executive Order 12866. The changes made by this final rule will not have an annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more within the meaning of Executive Order 12866.

Regulatory Flexibility Act Analysis

The Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96–354, Sept. 19, 1980) (RFA) applies only to rules for which an agency publishes a general notice of proposed rulemaking pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 553(b).5 Pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) at 5 U.S.C. 553(b)(B), general notice and an opportunity for public comment are not required prior to the issuance of a final rule when an agency, for good cause, finds that “notice and public procedure thereon are impracticable, unnecessary, or contrary to the public interest.”6

For the reasons set forth in the interim final rule,7 the OCC determined for good cause that the APA did not require general notice and public comment on the interim final rule and, therefore, did not publish a general notice of proposed rulemaking. Thus, the RFA, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 601(2), does not apply to this final rule.

Paperwork Reduction Act

In accordance with the requirements of the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (44 U.S.C. 3506), the OCC has reviewed the final rule and determined that it contains no collections of information as defined by the Paperwork Reduction Act.

Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995

Section 202 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995, Public Law 104–4 (2 U.S.C. 1532) (Unfunded Mandates Act), requires that an agency prepare a budgetary impact statement before promulgating any rule likely to result in a Federal mandate that may result in the expenditure by State, local, and tribal governments, in the aggregate, or by the private sector, of $100 million or more in any one year. The OCC has determined that there is no Federal mandate imposed by this rulemaking. Accordingly, the final rule is not subject to section 202 of the Unfunded Mandates Act.
