Corporate Decision #97-55
July 1997

DECISION OF THE OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY ON THE APPLICATIONS OF FIRST AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

June 26, 1997

I. INTRODUCTION

On May 6, 1997, First American National Bank, Nashville, Tennessee, ("FANB") filed an application with the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency ("OCC") for approval to merge First American National Bank of Kentucky, Bowling Green, Kentucky, ("FANB-KY") with and into FANB under FANB's charter and title, under 12 U.S.C. §§ 215a-1, 1828(c) & 1831u(a) ("the Kentucky Merger"). FANB has its main office in Nashville, Tennessee, and operates branches in Tennessee. FANB-KY has its main office in Bowling Green, Kentucky, and operates branches in Kentucky. OCC approval is also requested for the bank resulting from the merger to retain FANB's main office as the main office of the resulting bank under 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(d)(1) and to retain FANB's branches and FANB-KY's main office and branches, as branches after the merger under 12 U.S.C. §§ 36(d) & 1831u(d)(1).

On May 16, 1997, FANB applied to establish a branch in Bristol, Virginia, ("the Bristol Branch") and a branch in Abingdon, Virginia, ("the Abingdon Branch") under 12 U.S.C. § 36. On May 16, 1997, FANB also applied to purchase certain assets, and assume certain liabilities, from its affiliate, First American Federal Savings Bank, Roanoke, Virginia, under 12 U.S.C. §§ 24(Seventh) & 1828(c) ("the Virginia P&A"). FANB is acquiring the business currently conducted by First American Federal Savings Bank at its branches in Abingdon and Bristol, and that business will be transferred to FANB's two new Virginia branches.

FANB, FANB-KY, and First American Federal Savings Bank are subsidiaries of First American Corporation ("FAC"), a multistate bank holding company headquartered in Nashville, Tennessee. In the Kentucky Merger, FAC's existing bank subsidiary in Kentucky will be merged into FANB, its lead bank, in Tennessee. In the other transactions, the business of two branches of First American Federal Savings Bank in western Virginia (near the Tennessee border) will be transferred to two new branches of FANB. After the transactions, FANB will operate branches in three states.

II. LEGAL AUTHORITY

A. The Kentucky Merger is Authorized, and the Resulting Bank may Retain the Banking Offices of Both Banks under 12 U.S.C. §§ 215a-1, 1831u & 36(d) (the Riegle-Neal Act).

1. The Kentucky Merger is authorized under sections 215a-1 & 1831u(a).

In 1994, Congress enacted legislation to create a framework for interstate mergers and branching by banks. See Riegle-Neal Interstate Banking and Branching Efficiency Act of 1994, Pub. L. No. 103-328, 108 Stat. 2338 (enacted September 29, 1994) ("the Riegle-Neal Act"). The Riegle-Neal Act added a new section 44 to the Federal Deposit Insurance Act that authorizes certain interstate merger transactions beginning on June 1, 1997. See Riegle-Neal Act § 102(a) (adding new section 44, 12 U.S.C. § 1831u). It also made conforming amendments to the provisions on mergers and consolidations of national banks to permit national banks to engage in such section 44 interstate merger transactions. See Riegle-Neal Act § 102(b)(4) (adding a new section, codified at 12 U.S.C. § 215a-1). It also added a similar conforming amendment to the McFadden Act to permit national banks to maintain and operate branches in accordance with section 44. See Riegle-Neal Act § 102(b)(1)(B) (adding new subsection 12 U.S.C. § 36(d)).

Section 44 authorizes mergers between banks with different home states:

(1) In General. -- Beginning on June 1, 1997, the responsible agency may approve a merger transaction under section 18(c) [12 U.S.C. § 1828(c), the Bank Merger Act] between insured banks with different home States, without regard to whether such transaction is prohibited under the law of any State.

12 U.S.C. § 1831u(a)(1).¹ The Act permits a state to elect to prohibit such interstate merger transactions involving a bank whose home state is the prohibiting state by enacting a law between September 29, 1994, and May 31, 1997, that expressly prohibits all mergers with all out-of-state banks. See 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(a)(2) (state "opt-out" laws). In the Kentucky Merger, the home states of the banks are Kentucky and Tennessee; neither state has opted out. Accordingly, the Kentucky Merger may be approved under 12 U.S.C. §§ 215a-1 & 1831u(a).

In addition, an application to engage in an interstate merger transaction under 12 U.S.C. § 1831u is also subject to certain requirements and conditions set forth in sections 1831u(a)(5) and 1831u(b) of the Riegle-Neal Act. These conditions are: (1) compliance with state-imposed age limits, if any, subject to the Act's limits; (2) compliance with certain state filing requirements, to the extent the filing requirements are permitted in the Act; (3) compliance with nationwide and state concentration limits; (4) community reinvestment compliance; and (5) adequacy of capital and management skills.

The Kentucky Merger satisfies all these conditions to the extent applicable. First, the proposal satisfies the state-imposed age requirements permitted by section 1831u(a)(5). Under that section, the OCC may not approve a merger under section 1831u(a)(1) "that would have the effect of permitting an out-of-State bank or out-of-State bank holding company to acquire a bank in a host state that has not been in existence for the minimum period of time, if any, specified in the statutory law of the host State." 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(a)(5)(A). In the Kentucky Merger, FANB is acquiring by merger a bank (FANB-KY) in the host state of Kentucky. Kentucky law does not impose an age requirement on an interstate merger transaction where the resulting bank is an out-of-state national bank.² Thus, the Kentucky Merger satisfies the Riegle-Neal Act requirement of compliance with state age laws.

Second, the proposal meets the applicable filing requirements. A bank applying for an interstate merger transaction under section 1831u(a) must (1) "comply with the filing requirements of any host State of the bank which will result from such transaction" as long as the filing requirement does not discriminate against out-of-state banks and is similar in effect to filing requirements imposed by the host state on out-of-state nonbanking corporations doing business in the host state, and (2) submit a copy of the application to the state bank supervisor of the host state. See 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(b)(1).³ The Kentucky interstate bank merger statute does not place

² The Kentucky interstate bank merger statute does impose a five-year age requirement for the Kentucky bank in an interstate merger transaction, but it appears to apply only when an out-of-state state bank is the surviving bank:

The bank to be acquired in an interstate merger transaction under the provisions of subsections (2) [when a Kentucky state bank is the resulting bank] or (3) [when an out-of-state state bank is the resulting bank] shall have been involved in operation for a period of five (5) years or more.

Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 287.920(4). The reference to subsection (2) suggests that Kentucky also has imposed an age requirement for the target bank in another state in interstate merger transactions in which a Kentucky state bank is the resulting bank. In the proposed transaction here, the acquiring and resulting bank (FANB) is an out-of-state national bank; and so the Kentucky age restriction does not apply. Moreover, FANB-KY and its predecessors have been in existence and operation since 1934, and so the age restriction, if applicable, would be met.

³ Under this provision, states are permitted to impose a filing requirement on out-of-state banks that will operate branches in the state as a result of an interstate merger transaction under the Riegle-Neal Act, but the states may impose only those requirements that are within the terms specified. Since Congress has specifically set forth and limited what state filing requirements apply for these interstate transactions, it clearly intended that only those requirements would apply, and the states may not impose others. Thus, in a transaction involving only national banks, only the filing requirements allowed under section 1831u(b)(1) must be complied with. However, where a state bank is involved, a state may continue to have authority to impose greater requirements on its own state-chartered banks, any notice or filing requirements on mergers in which the resulting bank is an out-of-state national bank.⁴ FANB submitted a copy of its OCC application for the Kentucky Merger to the Kentucky state bank supervisor, as required by section 1831u(b)(1)(A)(ii). Thus, the Kentucky Merger satisfies the Riegle-Neal Act's filing requirements.

Third, the proposed interstate merger transaction does not raise issues with respect to the deposit concentration limits of the Riegle-Neal Act. Section 1831u(b)(2) places certain nationwide and statewide deposit concentration limits on section 1831u(a) interstate merger transactions. However, interstate merger transactions involving only affiliated banks are specifically excepted from these provisions. See 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(b)(2)(E). FANB and FANB-KY are affiliates; thus section 1831u(b)(2) is not applicable to this merger.

Fourth, the proposed interstate merger transaction also does not raise issues with respect to the special community reinvestment compliance provisions of the Riegle-Neal Act. In determining whether to approve an application for an interstate merger transaction under section 1831u(a), the OCC must (1) comply with its responsibilities under section 804 of the federal Community Reinvestment Act ("CRA"), 12 U.S.C. § 2903, (2) take into account the CRA evaluations of any bank which would be an affiliate of the resulting bank, and (3) take into account the applicant banks' record of compliance with applicable state community reinvestment laws. See 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(b)(3). However, this provision does not apply to mergers between affiliated banks since it applies only "for an interstate merger transaction in which the resulting bank would have a branch or bank affiliate immediately following the transaction in any State in which the bank submitting the application (as the acquiring bank) had no branch or bank affiliate immediately before the transaction." 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(b)(3). See also H.R. Conf. Rep. No. 651, 103d Cong., 2d Sess. 52 (1994). In the Kentucky Merger, FANB (the bank submitting the application as the acquiring bank) has a bank affiliate in Kentucky before the transaction (i.e., FANB-KY), and is also not otherwise obtaining a branch or bank affiliate in any state in which it did not have a branch or bank affiliate before. Thus, this Riegle-Neal Act provision is not applicable to the Kentucky Merger. However, the Community Reinvestment Act itself is applicable, as discussed below, see Part III-B.

because of the reservation of authority in section 1831u(c)(3). Moreover, as a general matter, national banks are formed and incorporated under, and governed by, federal law. Their authority to enter mergers, to establish branches, or to undergo other changes in their corporate existence is determined by federal law, not state law; and any requisite approval is by the OCC, not state authorities. For a fuller discussion of this subject, see, e.g., Decision on the Applications to Merge First Interstate Banks into Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. (OCC Corporate Decision No. 96-29, June 1, 1996) (at pages 4-5, 12-14 & note 11).

Fifth, the proposal satisfies the adequacy of capital and management skills requirements in the Riegle-Neal Act. The OCC may approve an application for an interstate merger transaction under section 1831u(a) only if each bank involved in the transaction is adequately capitalized as of the date the application is filed and the resulting bank will continue to be adequately capitalized and adequately managed upon consummation of the transaction. See 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(b)(4). As of the date the application was filed, both FANB and FANB-KY satisfied all regulatory and supervisory requirements relating to adequate capitalization. Currently, each bank is at least satisfactorily managed. The OCC has also determined that, following the merger, FANB will continue to exceed the standards for an adequately capitalized and adequately managed bank. The requirements of 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(b)(4) are therefore satisfied.

Accordingly, the proposed interstate merger transaction between FANB and FANB-KY is legally permissible under section 1831u.

2. The resulting bank may retain the banking offices of the banks under sections 36(d) & 1831u(d)(1).

FANB has requested that, upon the completion of the merger, FANB (as the resulting bank in the merger) be permitted to retain and continue to operate its main office in Nashville as the main office of the resulting bank and to retain and continue to operate as branches (1) its own branches and (2) the main office and branches of FANB-KY. In an interstate merger transaction under section 1831u, the resulting bank's retention and continued operation of the offices of the merging banks is expressly provided for:

(1) Continued Operations. -- A resulting bank may, subject to the approval of the appropriate Federal banking agency, retain and operate, as a main office or a branch, any office that any bank involved in an interstate merger transaction was operating as a main office or a branch immediately before the merger transaction.

12 U.S.C. § 1831u(d)(1). The resulting bank is the "bank that has resulted from an interstate merger transaction under this section [section 1831u(a)]." 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(f)(11). In addition, Congress also added a conforming amendment to the McFadden Act to emphasize that branch retention in an interstate merger transaction under section 1831u occurs under the authority of section 1831u(d):

(d) Branches Resulting From Interstate Merger Transactions. -- A national bank resulting from an interstate merger transaction (as defined in section 44(f)(6) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act) may maintain and operate a branch in a State other than the home State (as defined in subsection (g)(3)(B)) of such bank in accordance with section 44 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act [12 U.S.C. § 1831u].

12 U.S.C. § 36(d) (as added by Riegle-Neal Act § 102(b)(1)(B)). Therefore, FANB, the resulting bank in this interstate merger transaction, may retain and continue to operate all of the banking offices of both banks under 12 U.S.C. §§ 36(d) & 1831u(d)(1).⁵

Moreover, at its branches in Kentucky, as well as those in Tennessee and Virginia, FANB is authorized to engage in all activities permissible for national banks, including fiduciary activities. See, e.g., 12 U.S.C. §§ 215a-1 (Riegle-Neal mergers with a resulting national bank occur under the National Bank Consolidation and Merger Act), 215a(e) (the resulting national bank in a merger succeeds to all the rights, franchises and interests, including fiduciary appointments, of the merging banks), & 1831u(d)(1) (continued operations at retained interstate branches). See also OCC Interpretive Letter No. 695 (December 8, 1995) (national banks may engage in fiduciary business at trust offices and branches in different states). Cf. 12 U.S.C. § 36(f) (general provisions for host state laws applicable to branches in the host state of out-of-state national banks).

B. FANB may Establish the Two Branches in Virginia under 12 U.S.C. § 36.

FANB has applied to establish two new branches in Virginia, one in Bristol and the other in Abingdon. The first branch to be established, the Bristol Branch, is authorized as a de novo interstate branch under the Riegle-Neal Act, 12 U.S.C. § 36(g). Then, after the Bristol Branch is established, the Abingdon Branch is authorized as an additional branch in Virginia under 12 U.S.C. § 36(c).⁶

⁵ By its action in adding section 36(d), Congress made it clear that section 44(d)(1) is an express and complete grant of office-retention authority for interstate merger transactions effected under section 44 and that it operates independently of the provisions for branch retention in mergers under 12 U.S.C. § 36(b)(2). Neither section 36(d) nor section 1831u(d)(1) refer to section 36(b)(2). Congress clearly was aware of the McFadden Act's existing provisions for branch retention in mergers at the time it acted on Section 44 and the way in which those provisions applied for interstate national banks, since the OCC had approved interstate main office relocation transactions that also involved mergers with affiliate banks in which the resulting bank's authority to retain branches was based on section 36(b)(2). The Conference Report to the Riegle-Neal Act makes reference to such OCC decisions. See H.R. Conf. Rep. No. 651, 103d Cong., 2d Sess. 57 (1994). By expressly providing for office-retention in section 1831u(d)(1) and then incorporating that into the McFadden Act in section 36(d), Congress clearly intended that those provisions apply to branch retention in interstate merger transactions under section 1831u, rather than the complex branch retention provisions of section 36(b)(2). Of course, section 36(b)(2) continues to govern branch retention in national bank mergers that are not entered into under section 1831u, including mergers involving an interstate bank (such as a merger of an interstate bank into another national bank in its home state).

⁶ FANB's Bristol Branch and Abingdon Branch will be at the same locations as branches of its affiliate, First American Federal Savings Bank. FANB will be acquiring the business of First American Federal Savings Bank's two branches in the subsequent Virginia P&A. During the short time between the time FANB's branches are established and the time the Virginia P&A is consummated, branches of both institutions will operate at the same locations. See 12 C.F.R. § 7.3001 (national banks' sharing space and employees with other businesses, including other banks and financial institutions).

1. FANB may establish the Bristol Branch under section 36(g).

A national bank may establish an initial de novo branch in another state in which it does not already operate a branch under 12 U.S.C. § 36(g), subject to the requirements of the section:

Subject to paragraph (2), the Comptroller of the Currency may approve an application by a national bank to establish and operate a de novo branch in a State (other than the bank's home State) in which the bank does not maintain a branch if --

- (A) there is in effect in the host State a law that --
 - (i) applies equally to all banks; and
 - (ii) expressly permits all out-of-State banks to establish de novo branches in such State; and
- (B) the conditions established in, or made applicable to this paragraph by, paragraph (2) are met.

12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(1) (Revised Statutes § 5155, as added by section 103(a) of the Riegle-Neal Act). In the application for the Bristol Branch, Tennessee is FANB's home state, and Virginia is the host state.⁷

Virginia enacted legislation, effective July 1, 1995, that permits interstate branching. See Va. Code Ann. §§ 6.1-44.1 through 6.1-44.25 (1995). The statute includes provisions that expressly permit de novo branches in Virginia by out-of-state banks:

An out-of-state bank that does not already maintain a branch in this Commonwealth and that meets the requirements of this article may establish and maintain a de novo branch in this Commonwealth.

Va. Code Ann. § 6.1-44.4 (1995).⁸ In earlier applications, the OCC considered the Virginia statute and determined it met the requirements in, and so triggered the interstate branching authority of, 12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(1). See, e.g., Decision on the Application of Wachovia Bank of North Carolina, N.A., to Establish a Branch in Norfolk, Virginia (OCC Corporate Decision

⁷ For purposes of section 36(g), the following definitions apply: The term "home State" means "the State in which the main office of a national bank is located." 12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(3)(B). The term "host state" means, "with respect to a bank, a State, other than the home State of the bank, in which the bank maintains, or seeks to establish and maintain, a branch." 12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(3)(C). The term "de novo branch" means a "branch of a national bank which (i) is originally established by the national bank as a branch, and (ii) does not become a branch of such bank as a result of (I) the acquisition by the bank of an insured depository institution or a branch of an insured depository institution or (II) the conversion, merger, or consolidation of any such institution or branch." 12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(3)(A). Moreover, section 36(g) applies only to a national bank's initial de novo branch in a host state. Once the bank has a branch or branches in the state, then that state is not one "in which the bank does not maintain a branch." In such states, as discussed below, subsequent branching by a national bank is governed by the other subsections of section 36, as appropriate.

⁸ Virginia also expressly provides for interstate branching through the acquisition of a branch. See Va. Code Ann. § 6.1-44.5 (1995).

No. 96-14, March 15, 1996) (“OCC Wachovia Decision”). Accordingly, FANB’s application to establish the Bristol Branch may be approved under 12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(1).⁹

In addition an application by a national bank to establish an interstate branch is also subject to certain conditions set forth in 12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(2). These conditions are incorporated from the provisions for approval of an interstate merger transaction by the appropriate federal banking agency under section 44 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, 12 U.S.C. § 1831u. Specifically, the conditions are those contained in paragraphs (1), (3), and (4) of 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(b). These conditions are: compliance with state filing requirements, community reinvestment compliance, and adequacy of capital and management skills.

FANB’s application satisfies all these conditions to the extent applicable. First, the proposal complies with applicable filing requirements. A bank applying for an interstate branch must (1) comply with the filing requirements of the host state as long as the filing requirement does not discriminate against out-of-state banks and is similar in effect to filing requirements imposed by the host state on out-of-state nonbanking corporations doing business in the host state, and (2) submit a copy of the application to the state bank supervisor of the host state. See 12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(2)(A) (incorporating section 1831u(b)(1)). The Virginia statute requires an out-of-state bank desiring to establish a de novo branch in Virginia to provide a copy of its federal branch application to the Commission at the same time the bank files its application with the responsible federal banking agency and to comply with the applicable requirements of the Foreign Corporations Article (Article 17) in Virginia's Stock Corporation Act. See Va. Code Ann. § 6.1-44.6 (1995). FANB timely provided a copy of its OCC application to the Virginia Commissioner of Financial Institutions and has applied for a certificate of authority to transact

⁹ The Virginia provisions permitting de novo interstate branches and interstate branch acquisitions also contained a reciprocal treatment condition:

No branch of an out-of-state bank may be established under this article, unless:

1. In the case of a de novo branch, the laws of the home state of the out-of-state bank permit Virginia banks to establish and maintain de novo branches in that state under substantially the same terms as set forth in this article.
2. In the case of a branch to be established through the acquisition of a branch, the laws of the out-of-state bank [sic] permit Virginia banks to establish and maintain branches in that state through the acquisition of branches under substantially the same terms as set forth in this article.

Va. Code Ann. § 6.1-44.7 (1995). The OCC previously questioned whether the Riegle-Neal Act permits the states to impose a reciprocal treatment condition for de novo branches. See, e.g., OCC Wachovia Decision; Decision on the Application of Patrick Henry National Bank, Bassett, Virginia, to Establish a Branch in Eden, North Carolina (OCC Corporate Decision No. 96-04, January 19, 1996). Recently, the Virginia Bureau of Financial Institutions took the position that the reciprocity condition in section 6.1-44.7 would be without effect after May 31, 1997:

The Bureau has understood, and now is of the opinion, that because the General Assembly founded Articles 5.1 and 5.2 upon Riegle-Neal, the reciprocity conditions in §§ 6.1-44.7 and 6.1-44.20 terminate and are without effect after May 31, 1997.

Response of the Bureau of Financial Institutions (May 8, 1997) at 2, Virginia State Corporation Commission Case No. BFI950202 (In re: Petition of First American Corporation).

business under the Foreign Corporations Article. Thus, it has complied with the applicable state filing requirements in accordance with the provisions of sections 36(g)(2)(A) and 1831u(b)(1).

Second, the proposal satisfies all requirements relating to community reinvestment compliance. In determining whether to approve an application under section 36(g), the OCC must (1) comply with its responsibilities under section 804 of the federal Community Reinvestment Act ("CRA"), (2) take into account the CRA evaluations of any affiliated banks of the applicant bank, and (3) take into account the applicant's record of compliance with applicable state community reinvestment laws. See 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(b)(3) (as incorporated by section 36(g)(2)(A)). The CRA requires the OCC to take into account FANB's record of helping to meet the credit needs of its entire community, including low- and moderate-income neighborhoods. See 12 U.S.C. § 2903. Based on the OCC's most recent examination, FANB has a satisfactory rating with respect to CRA performance. The OCC also reviewed the CRA records of FANB's affiliated banks and determined there are no CRA concerns. Tennessee does not have community reinvestment laws applicable to FANB.

Third, the proposal satisfies the adequacy of capital and management skills requirements in the Riegle-Neal Act. The OCC may approve an application for a de novo branch under section 36(g) only if the bank is adequately capitalized as of the date the application is filed and will continue to be adequately capitalized and adequately managed after the transaction. See 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(b)(4) (as incorporated by section 36(g)(2)(A)). As of the date the application was filed, FANB satisfied all regulatory and supervisory requirements relating to adequate capitalization, and it currently is at least satisfactorily managed. The OCC has also determined that, following the transaction, FANB will continue to exceed the standards for an adequately capitalized and adequately managed bank. The requirements of 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(b)(4) are therefore satisfied.

Accordingly, the Bristol Branch is authorized under 12 U.S.C. § 36(g).

2. FANB may establish the Abingdon Branch under section 36(c).

FANB also applied to establish a branch in Abingdon, Virginia. FANB intends to open the Abingdon Branch after the Bristol Branch has opened. Although FANB has no branches in Virginia today or at the time it filed these applications, it will have established the Bristol Branch before the Abingdon Branch opens. Thus, at the time it opens, the Abingdon Branch will be another branch in a state in which FANB already has a branch. As such, it is not within the scope of 12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(1), since section 36(g)(1) addresses the authority of a national bank to establish "a de novo branch in a State (other than the bank's home State) in which the bank does not maintain a branch." 12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(1) (emphasis added). When the Abingdon Branch opens, the Bristol Branch already will have opened and so Virginia will no longer be a state in which FANB "does not maintain a branch," and so section 36(g)(1) is not applicable.

Instead, after a national bank's first branch in a host state, subsequent de novo branches by the national bank in that state are governed by 12 U.S.C. § 36(c). Under the Riegle-Neal Act, once a national bank has obtained interstate branches in a host state by an interstate merger transaction under 12 U.S.C. § 1831u or has established an interstate de novo branch in a host state under 12 U.S.C. § 36(g), then the national bank's later acquisition or establishment of additional branches in that state is subject to the same branching authority governing branching by other national banks in that state. See 12 U.S.C. § 1831u(d)(2) (additional branches by interstate banks formed by Riegle-Neal interstate merger transactions) & 12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(2)(B) (incorporating section 1831u(d)(2) to apply to additional branches by interstate banks formed by a Riegle-Neal de novo branch).¹⁰ The legislative history of the de novo branching provisions of the Riegle-Neal Act reaffirms this:

Once a bank has established a branch in a host State by de novo branching such bank may establish and acquire additional branches at any location in the host State in the same manner as a bank could have established or acquired under applicable Federal or State law.

H.R. Conf. Rep. No. 651, 103d Cong., 2d Sess. 56 (August 2, 1994) (Report on H.R. 3841, the Riegle-Neal Interstate Banking and Branching Efficiency Act of 1994). See also Decision on the Applications of Community National Bank (OCC Corporate Decision No. 96-22, April 19, 1996) (earlier, similar application for two branches in North Carolina).

These provisions codify, for Riegle-Neal interstate national banks, the interpretation of section 36(c) adopted by the courts and the OCC in the context of interstate national banks formed under other, prior law. In section 36(c), the McFadden Act authorizes a national bank to establish new branches "at any point within the State in which said association is situated, if such establishment and operation are at the time authorized to State banks by the statute law of the State in question" 12 U.S.C. § 36(c)(2). The interpretation of the statute adopted since at least 1974 has been that, for the purpose of establishing additional branches under

¹⁰ Section 1831u(d)(2) provides:

(2) Additional Branches. -- Following the consummation of any interstate merger transaction, the resulting bank may establish, acquire, or operate additional branches at any location where any bank involved in the transaction could have established, acquired, or operated a branch under applicable Federal or State law if such bank had not been a party to the merger transaction.

12 U.S.C. § 1831u(d)(2). Thus, in any host state, a national bank resulting from an interstate merger among national banks in different states may establish or acquire additional branches in the host state under the federal law applicable to branching by national banks in the host state (e.g., section 36(b)(2) with respect to branches acquired through merger, and section 36(c) with respect to branches acquired by purchase or established de novo).

Section 36(g)(2)(B) provides:

(B) Operation. -- Subsections (c) and (d)(2) of section 44 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act [12 U.S.C. §§ 1831u(c) & 1831u(d)(2)] shall apply with respect to each branch of a national bank which is established and operated pursuant to an application approved under this subsection in the same manner and to the same extent such provisions of section 44 apply to a branch of a national bank which resulted from an interstate merger transaction approved pursuant to such section 44.

12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(2)(B).

section 36(c), an interstate national bank is "situated" in each state in which it has its main office or a branch: The bank can establish other branches within each state to the same extent as other national banks situated in that state, i.e., to the same extent that state allows its state banks to have branches within the state. See Seattle Trust & Savings Bank v. Bank of California, N.A., 492 F.2d 48 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 419 U.S. 844 (1974). The OCC has applied this principle from Seattle Trust in prior decisions involving national banks with operations in more than one state both before and after the Riegle-Neal Act. See, e.g., Decision of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency on the Applications of Bank Midwest, N.A. (OCC Corporate Decision No. 95-05, February 16, 1995), reprinted in Fed. Banking L. Rep. (CCH) ¶ 90,474 ("OCC Bank Midwest Decision") (Part II-B) (and other OCC decisions cited therein). See also OCC Bank Midwest Decision (Part II-C-2) (applying similar analysis in section 36(b)(2)).

Thus, both by operation of 12 U.S.C. § 36(g)(2)(B) and by existing construction of 12 U.S.C. § 36(c), FANB's establishment of the Abingdon Branch is subject to section 36(c), not section 36(g).¹¹ For purposes of applying section 36(c) to FANB's later branching within Virginia after the Bristol Branch, FANB is treated as a national bank situated in Virginia, and specifically as a national bank with its main office at the Bristol Branch. Under Virginia law, a Virginia state-chartered bank is permitted to establish branches throughout Virginia without geographic limitation. See Va. Code Ann. § 6.1-39.3(A). A Virginia state bank in Bristol could establish a branch in Abingdon. Thus, a national bank situated in Virginia could establish a branch in Abingdon under 12 U.S.C. § 36(c). Therefore, FANB may establish the proposed branch in Abingdon under section 36(c).¹²

C. The Virginia P&A is authorized under 12 U.S.C. § 24(Seventh).

FANB also applied to purchase certain assets from, and assume certain liabilities of, its affiliate, First American Federal Savings Bank, shortly after the Bristol Branch and the Abingdon

¹² Since FANB plans to open the Bristol Branch first, and then the Abingdon Branch, the authority for each branch is section 36(g) and section 36(c) respectively. We note that, if FANB were to have planned to open the Abingdon Branch first, the alternate order also would have been authorized. In that event, the Abingdon Branch (the first branch in this plan) would have met the requirements for, and been authorized under, section 36(g); and the Bristol Branch would have been established under section 36(c).

Branch are established. These assets and liabilities consist of the affiliate's business at its branches in Bristol and Abingdon.

National banks have long been authorized to purchase bank-permissible assets and assume bank-permissible liabilities from sellers, including assuming the deposit liabilities from other depository institutions, as part of their general banking powers under 12 U.S.C. § 24(Seventh). See, e.g., City National Bank of Huron v. Fuller, 52 F.2d 870, 872-73 (8th Cir. 1931); In re Cleveland Savings Society, 192 N.E.2d 518, 523-24 (Ohio Com. Pl. 1961). See also 12 U.S.C. § 1828(c)(3) (purchase and assumption transactions included among transactions requiring review under the Bank Merger Act). Such purchase and assumption transactions are commonplace in the banking industry. Accordingly, FANB may purchase the assets, and assume the liabilities, of First American Federal Savings Bank's Bristol and Abingdon branches.

D. The Kentucky Merger and the Virginia P&A Comply with 12 U.S.C. § 1815(d)(3).

The Kentucky Merger and the Virginia P&A also comply with the Oakar Amendment, 12 U.S.C. § 1815(d)(3). FANB-KY and First American Federal Savings Bank are members of the Savings Association Insurance Fund ("SAIF"). FANB is a member of the Bank Insurance Fund ("BIF"). The merger of a SAIF member into a BIF member, and the assumption of any liability by a BIF member to pay any deposits of a SAIF member, are conversion transactions under 12 U.S.C. § 1815(d)(2)(B)(ii) & (B)(iii)(I). Institutions may participate in such transactions, without being subject to the requirements of section 1815(d)(2), if the transaction complies with the provisions of section 1815(d)(3).

The Oakar Amendment imposes several conditions on approval of these transactions. The acquiring or resulting bank must meet all applicable capital requirements upon consummation of the transaction. See 12 U.S.C. § 1815(d)(3)(E)(iii). As discussed above in sections II-A and II-B-1, the OCC has determined the acquiring and resulting bank (FANB) meets all applicable capital requirements.

In addition, a BIF member which is a subsidiary of a bank holding company may not be the acquiring and resulting bank in an Oakar transaction unless the transaction would comply with the requirements for an interstate bank acquisition of section 3(d) of the Bank Holding Company Act, 12 U.S.C. § 1842(d), if the SAIF member involved in the transaction was a state bank that the BIF member's parent bank holding company was applying to acquire. See 12 U.S.C. § 1815(d)(3)(F).¹³ In the Kentucky Merger, this analysis is self-evident because FANB-KY, while a SAIF member, is a national bank already owned by the bank holding company. Thus, this transaction is unlike the usual Oakar transaction which involves the acquisition of a SAIF-insured thrift. Nevertheless, we will briefly set out the analysis for both the Kentucky Merger and the Virginia P&A.

Section 1842(d), as incorporated into section 1815(d)(3)(F), imposes limitations on Oakar transactions pertaining to the age of the bank being acquired, deposit concentration limits, compliance with federal Community Reinvestment Act requirements and applicable state community reinvestment requirements, and capital and management of the resulting institution. All of these are met with respect to both the Kentucky Merger and the Virginia P&A. First, the age limit is met in both transactions. Kentucky law provides that out-of-state bank holding companies may not acquire a Kentucky bank that has been in existence less than five years. See Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 287.900(2). FANB-KY and its predecessors have been in existence since 1934. Virginia law provides that out-of-state bank holding companies may not acquire a Virginia bank that has been in existence less than two years. See Va. Code Ann. § 6.1-399(A)(3). First American Federal Savings Bank and the two branches have been in existence and operation for more than two years.

Second, the deposit concentration limits are satisfied. With respect to national concentration limits, FAC and all of its insured depository institution affiliates must not control more than 10% of the total amount of insured deposits in the United States. See 12 U.S.C. § 1842(d)(2)(A). They controlled about $9 billion in domestic deposits as of December 31, 1996, less than one percent of total United States deposits. The nationwide concentration limit is satisfied. With respect to state concentration limits, the applicant and all of its insured depository institution affiliates may not control more than 30% of the insured deposits in the state of the bank to be acquired if the bank holding company already controls an insured depository institution or any branch of an insured depository institution in the relevant state. See 12 U.S.C. § 1842(d)(2)(B). If these transactions are not considered initial entries in the Oakar analysis and so paragraph (d)(2)(B) is applicable to them, this limit is met. In both transactions, deposits are merely moving among FAC's existing insured depository institution subsidiaries. Therefore, the total amount of deposits held in each state by the applicant and all of its insured depository institution affiliates will not change. FAC's total Kentucky deposits of its insured depository institutions was about $199 million, less than one percent of the total Kentucky deposits, as of December 31, 1996. Similarly, FAC's total Virginia deposits of its insured depository institutions was substantially below 30%. The statewide concentration limit is satisfied in both the Kentucky Merger and the Virginia P&A.

Third, the bank holding company's compliance with the federal Community Reinvestment Act ("CRA") and with applicable state community reinvestment laws must be considered under 12 U.S.C. § 1842(d)(3)(A) (federal) & (B) (state). Bank holding company compliance with the federal CRA is evaluated by looking to the federal CRA record of the bank holding company's subsidiaries that are subject to the law. 12 C.F.R. § 228.29 (1996). In this regard, we note that the applicant bank has a satisfactory federal CRA rating. FAC's other depository institution subsidiaries, FANB-KY and First American Federal Savings Bank, both have satisfactory ratings with respect to CRA performance. With respect to compliance with applicable state community reinvestment laws, none of the states involved -- Tennessee, Kentucky, or Virginia -- has state community reinvestment laws applicable to these banks. No public comments were received by the OCC relating to the applicant's or the holding company's federal or state CRA performance, and the OCC has no other basis to question the bank holding company's CRA performance. Thus, no issues arise under the federal CRA or state community reinvestment laws that would require denial of these applications.

Finally, we note that the condition of the bank holding company, including its capital position and management, is consistent with approval of this transaction under the standards set forth in section 1842(d)(1) as incorporated into the Oakar Amendment. Accordingly, the Kentucky Merger and the Virginia P&A comply with the Oakar Amendment.

III. ADDITIONAL STATUTORY AND POLICY REVIEWS

A. The Bank Merger Act.

The Bank Merger Act, 12 U.S.C. § 1828(c), requires the OCC's approval for any merger, including purchase and assumption transactions, between insured depository institutions where the resulting institution will be a national bank. Under the Act, the OCC generally may not approve a merger which would substantially lessen competition. In addition, the Act also requires the OCC to take into consideration the financial and managerial resources and future prospects of the existing and proposed institutions, and the convenience and needs of the community to be served. For the reasons stated below, we find the Kentucky Merger and the Virginia P&A may be approved under section 1828(c).

1. Competitive Analysis.

Since FANB, FANB-KY, and First American Federal Savings Bank are already owned by the same bank holding company, the Kentucky Merger and the Virginia P&A will have no anticompetitive effects.

2. Financial and Managerial Resources.

The financial and managerial resources of FANB are presently satisfactory. FANB expects to achieve efficiencies by operating the offices in Kentucky as branches rather than as a separate corporate entity. The addition of the two branches in western Virginia, close to FANB's existing operations in Tennessee, will place minimal additional burden on FANB's systems. The geographic diversification of its operations will also strengthen the combined bank. The future prospects of the existing institutions, individually and combined, are favorable. Thus, we find the financial and managerial resources factor is consistent with approval of the Kentucky Merger and the Virginia P&A.

3. Convenience and Needs.

The resulting bank will help to meet the convenience and needs of the communities to be served. FANB will continue to serve the same areas in Tennessee and it will add FANB-KY's offices in Kentucky and the two branches in western Virginia. Both FANB and FANB-KY currently offer a full line of banking services, and there will be no reduction in the products or services as a result of the merger. The combined bank will continue to offer a full line of banking products and services. The branches in Kentucky will continue to engage in the same business, serving the same communities, that FANB-KY is currently engaged in. FANB will also offer its full range of products and services at its two branches in western Virginia.

Upon completion of the transactions, customers of the predecessor institutions will have available to them a greater number of branches at which to bank. Currently, banking is not as convenient as it could be for customers who frequently travel across the state lines or for business customers who have operations in more than one state. Following the transactions, customers would be dealing with the same bank in the different states and will be able to readily access their accounts with greater convenience. Customers of the Bristol and Abingdon branches of First American Federal Savings Bank will especially benefit, since those branches are near the Tennessee border and close to FANB's other offices in eastern Tennessee. The Kentucky Merger and Virginia P&A will permit the resulting bank to better serve its customers and at a lower cost.

No branch closings are contemplated as a result of the Kentucky Merger since FANB and FANB-KY serve different areas. However, as part of its ongoing business plans, FANB evaluates its branch system, including branches acquired in transactions, and, as a part of the normal course of business, may close redundant or unprofitable branches. Any such closures will be made in accordance with applicable statutes and regulations, including notification of customers of the branches, and will consider the needs of the community affected.

Accordingly, we believe the impact of the Kentucky Merger and the Virginia P&A on the convenience and needs of the communities to be served is consistent with approval of the applications.

B. The Community Reinvestment Act.

The Community Reinvestment Act ("CRA") requires the OCC to take into account the applicants' record of helping to meet the credit needs of their entire communities, including low- and moderate-income neighborhoods, when evaluating certain applications. See 12 U.S.C. § 2903. Both FANB and FANB-KY have satisfactory ratings with respect to CRA performance. No public comments were received by the OCC relating to these applications, and the OCC has no other basis to question the banks' performance in complying with the CRA.

The transactions are not expected to have any adverse effect on the resulting bank's CRA performance. The resulting bank will continue to serve the same communities that FANB, FANB-KY, and the two branches in western Virginia currently serve. FANB will continue its current CRA programs and policies in Tennessee. After FANB-KY is merged into FANB, its Kentucky offices will remain open as branches of FANB. And, after the two new branches are opened and the Virginia P&A has occurred, those areas will be added to FANB's assessment area. FANB will carry forward the same CRA programs and policies it and FANB-KY have today and add other programs as they are developed. As a general matter, the resulting bank will have the same commitment to helping meet the credit needs of all the communities it serves as FANB and FANB-KY have today as separate banks. The Kentucky Merger, the establishment of new branches in Virginia, the Virginia P&A, and the resulting operation of interstate branches do not alter the resulting bank's obligation to help meet the credit needs of its communities in all the states it serves. We find that approval of these applications is consistent with the Community Reinvestment Act.

IV. CONCLUSION AND APPROVAL

For the reasons set forth above, including the representations and commitments made by the applicants, we find that the Kentucky Merger is legally authorized as an interstate merger transaction under the Riegle-Neal Act, 12 U.S.C. §§ 215a-1 & 1831u(a) and the resulting bank is authorized to retain and operate the offices of both banks under 12 U.S.C. §§ 36(d) & 1831u(d)(1), that FANB's establishment of the Bristol Branch and the Abingdon Branch are authorized under 12 U.S.C. § 36, that the Virginia P&A is authorized under 12 U.S.C. § 24(Seventh), and that the applications meet the other statutory criteria for approval. Accordingly, these applications are hereby approved.
